For eighteen years, Open Source Gallery has energized diverse communities around artistic expression, sustainability, and social engagement. In the last year alone, they presented five site-specific art exhibitions and over 50 free public events, from live music and storytelling, to remedy-making, dinner parties, and makeovers. Through their education program, KoKo NYC, they have helped over 2,500 kids see possibilities, problem solve, create, and explore, experiment, build houses, construct soapbox cars, create art, and more. Looking ahead to 2025, Open Source Gallery needs our help to meet every exciting opportunity and challenge so that they can continue to create a safe and free space for experimentation, conversation, and play.

Open Source Gallery's mission to be "open source" means collaborating with the community to learn, grow, and support each other. For their annual Fundraising Gala, Open Source has invited us, along with other organizations that sustain our neighborhoods, to share our audiences and raise funds together, because we believe that we are always stronger together.
